cot - tage home she's wait - ing, 'neath the south - ern skies; Of - ten wea - ry years of heart-aches, while her love lamp burned; But on by the gate she's stand - ing, when sum - mer moon-light shines, And Eng-land's soil her sweet-heart, who's sleep - ing 'neath the sod, Tho' thinks of one who loved and left her 'mid the Geor-gia pines; She eve-ry night a prayer for him went to the throne of God; A cant be-lieve him faith-less, tho' years have come and gone, For bunch of fad-ed let-ters, A pict-ure worn with wear, Are her love is a se-cret and her grief her own; She re-fond-ly read be-fore she says her good-night prayer; At the -calls the sad, sweet par-ting On that morn-ing, long ago, When sound of pass-ing foot-steps Her eyes with rap-ture glow, And he said, "Good-by, my darling!" And she an-swered, sweet and low:- the same old words she whispers As in days of long ago.

Refrain.

When you come back to Geor-gia you will find me true, Wan-der
